ABOUT ME

Setting objectives is important and accomplishing them step by step according to importance.

I worked as a civil activist in several voluntary organizations through which I learned teamwork to achieve a specific goal, and sometimes I was the group leader

Also, working as a journalist added to me the trait of patience, searching for the facts of things, and the necessity of telling the truth no matter what the cost

Through the previous work, I learned the skills of communicating with others, forming good relationships during work, and thinking about each person and what he can do for the work.

I worked on my professional side as an assistant electrical engineer and technician and acquired many academic skills in addition to what I obtained from my university education.

My motto at work and my social life is always I can
